

Danny is staying with his grandpa for five days.
He loves to look at Grandpa's beautiful paintings and colorful masks.
His favorite is a painting of five animals from Africa.

“Those are the big five,” says Grandpa,
“the most famous animals from my homeland.
Why don’t I tell you about one animal each day?”

On Monday, Danny and Grandpa walk to the supermarket. It's raining, so Danny wears his raincoat and boots. "What is the first animal?" Danny asks Grandpa. "The first animal is so big that you can see him from a great distance," says Grandpa. "He has big ears, big tusks, and a long trunk."
