

Construction workers are hard at work on a new house for a family. The daddy wants a big garage, and the mommy would like to have big windows. Their boy really wants a playroom for all his toys . . . What kind of dream house would you build?

A construction worker wears sturdy clothes. His work pants have lots of pockets, and a small bag on his belt stores his smaller tools. It can be rather dangerous on the construction site, so he wears work boots, a helmet, and safety goggles. And when there's a lot of noise, he wears his earmuffs. His gloves help him pick up things like bricks. You can always see him because of his fluorescent vest.
