

In a deep, dark forest that was hidden away,
two types of Galoons lived in two different trees.

The Spotted Galoons thought they were quite fine,
and that their tree was better in every way.
The Striped Galoons thought they were the best birds,
and that their tree was better, so they kept to themselves.

These birds always squabbled and griped.
The Striped didn't care for the Spotted.
The Spotted didn't like them back.
Who disliked the other more? It was hard to say.

