A wooden gavel is shown in a dynamic, slightly tilted position, resting on a stack of several thick, old books. The gavel's head is positioned as if it has just struck or is about to strike the top book. A bright, glowing light emanates from the point of contact, creating a shimmering, starburst effect. The entire scene is set against a warm, golden-brown background. The image is framed by a dark, irregular border that resembles the edges of a stack of cards or a photo print.
