How do you say Frisian letters?

This page focuses on some of the Frisian letters. A similar English pronunciation is given to give you a good idea of the Frisian pronunciation.

'â'	'aw'	as in 'Dawn'
'ê'	'he'	as in 'Where'
'g'	'g'	as in 'Girl'
'i'	'i'	as in 'Bin'	*'i' has more sound options.

'i'/y'	'e'	as in 'He, She, We'
'j'	'y'	as in 'You'
'û'	'o'	as in 'Two'

'w' in Frisian is a sound in between 'v' and 'w' at the beginning of words.

'oe'	'oo'	as in 'Good'
'ie'/ii'	'ea'	as in 'Leader'
'ij'	'y'	as in 'By'
'ei'	it is near to 'y'	as in 'My'
'oa'	'or'	as in 'Bore'
'ea'	'ea'	as in 'Gear'
'ch'	as in Scottish	'loch'

'iuw' like 'ee' in 'bee' and 'oo' in 'boot' said together quickly.

The letters b, d, t, f, h, k, l, m, n, s are (nearly) the same as English.

The little 'hat' (circumflex) on top of these letters: â, ô, ê make the sound of the regular 'a', 'o', 'e' longer. This is not always the case with 'û'.

The easiest rules in Frisian

Frisian isn't hard to learn and you can already get really far with the following rules:

- A Frisian word never starts with a 'c', 'v' or 'z'.
 - 'v' (sound) is always a 'f'.
 - 'c' (sound) is always a 'k'.
- The Frisian alphabet does not have the letters 'q', 'c' and 'x'.
- A Frisian word never ends with 'g', the 'g' will turn into a 'ch'. However, when a Frisian word ends with 'ng', the 'g' doesn't change.
- The 'e' sound (as in English: free) is written as 'y' or 'i'.

About Y & I:

Ik yt	Wy ite
I eat	We eat

When a verb in the first person has a 'y' it turns into a 'i' in the plural or adjective form. Just like the example above.
