when did the

“does he love me – does he love me not?” ’ s turn into

“do i love him - do I love him not?” ’ s?

my mind tends to end up in knots and doubt the love until it rots along with these forget-me-nots contents

growing urges

hiraeth in my heart to some place my mind discards the patterns you buried deeply are making it fade away completely deplete my fragile core from all the things i once adored from the love that flowed in me before it all washed up on the shore only worth your love if i comply to your projections until the day i die i' ll walk in your directions are you supposed to feel this much like home?

what does it mean to be free?

do i have to say goodbye to me and all my heart wants to be is it defined in terms of creating security while mastering the tactics of society or in terms of following my heart without having to pull it apart what do i do with the streams of my essence escaping my body in order to show you what you want to see while i forget what it means to be me

what does it mean to be free?

the smell of cigarette smoke has been feeling so much like home a home that smells so much like a safe space

but is prone to take you with it until you' re nothing but bones
