PREFACE

Quotes are more than just words on a page. They are the result of deep contemplation on the things that actually are important in life. Because they are short, often only one sentence, quotes can in a simple way describe the essence of the complicated world we live in.

I started writing my own quotes somewhere in my 40s. A mature age helps when examining the ups and downs of life. After all, you need to have lived life to have experience from it. Furthermore, a couple of decades in any profession makes you understand what success and failure in business look like, and how to handle them in the best possible way.

Quotes per se can perhaps not change the world, but they might influence our minds so that we can improve our view on the world and on each other, be more successful in whatever we do, and together make the world a better place.

Life is too short for not doing everything we can to take it to the next level. I hope my quotes can be an inspiration in this effort.

Life may have a plan for you,
but that shouldn't stop you
from using your brain.

2

You have to weigh
your choices
before you choose
your way.

3

What we expect
from others
is usually not what they are willing to give.
What others accept
to deliver
is usually not what we need.

4

I have a simple
background.
That helps me
when dealing with complicated people.

5

Life starts when you stop lying to yourself.

6

The world is full of opportunities.
They are just
very hard to find.
Especially if you're not looking for them.

7

There is no reason
to rush through life.
You may end up finishing among the first.

8

In the future
we can look back on what we thought we were looking forward to
in the past.
