WELCOME TO GRAND HOTEL BELLMONT

For one hundred years, Grand Hotel Bellmont has welcomed distinguished guests to its secluded estate in the English countryside.

Behind its ivy-covered walls lie generations of secrets, whispered conversations and stories best left untold.

This weekend, the hotel is celebrating its centenary.

Sixty guests, employees and invited acquaintances have gathered for the occasion.

But before the celebrations are over, the hotel's owner will be found dead.

And someone inside Bellmont knows exactly what happened...

The murder

Saturday, 17 October.

At approximately 9:17 PM, Arthur Bellmont, the 62-year-old owner of Grand Hotel Bellmont, was last seen leaving the hotel's private bar.

Later that evening, he was discovered dead inside his private suite on the third floor.

Investigators quickly determined that his death was no accident.

The hotel was secured, and all 60 individuals connected to the evening were placed under investigation.

As the police began examining the evidence, inconsistencies emerged.

A missing receipt. Conflicting statements. Unexplained movements throughout the hotel.

Twelve categories of evidence were identified, each containing information that could help narrow the suspect pool.

Your task is to examine the evidence, solve each elimination challenge and identify the person responsible for Arthur Bellmont's murder.

60 suspects. 12 challenges. One killer.

The investigation begins now.

Your Assignment

Welcome, Detective.

Your task is to identify the person responsible for the murder of Arthur Bellmont.

Inside this book, you will find twelve elimination challenges. Each challenge contains 1,000 possible answers and ten clues.

Use the clues to eliminate incorrect entries until only one remains.

THE RULES

1. Start with Category 01.
2. Read the clues in order, beginning with Clue 1.
3. Cross out every entry that does not match the clue.
4. Continue until you have worked through all ten clues.
5. Write down the final remaining answer.
6. Compare your answer with the information in the suspect register.
7. Eliminate every suspect who does not match your discovery.
8. An empty field in a suspect's record means the information is unknown. Only a direct contradiction allows you to eliminate a suspect.

Repeat this process for all twelve categories.

At the end of your investigation, only one suspect should remain.

That person is Arthur Bellmont's killer.

THE FINAL VERDICT

Once you have completed all twelve challenges and eliminated the suspects who contradict your findings, you should be left with one final suspect.

But identifying the killer is only half the investigation.

At the end of this book, you will find a confidential QR code. Scan it and enter the room number of your chosen suspect to access the digital Final Case File.

Choose carefully, Detective.

A few detective tips

Take your time.

Some clues will eliminate hundreds of possibilities, while others require a little more attention. Work through the clues in order.

Use a pencil or highlighter.

Cross out incorrect entries as you go. Remember, once an entry has been eliminated, it cannot return.

Counting letters

When counting letters, ignore spaces, punctuation and hyphens. Only alphabetical letters count.

Counting words

Every word counts, including short words such as a, an, the, of, and and with. Words are separated by spaces; hyphenated terms count as one word.

Vowels and consonants

The vowels are A, E, I, O and U. All other letters are consonants. Count repeated letters separately unless a clue specifically tells you otherwise.

Keep track of your discoveries.

Record the final answer to each challenge in your Detective's Notebook. You'll need all twelve answers to identify the killer.

Need a little help?

Keep track of your discoveries in your Detective's Notebook. Once all twelve challenges are complete, use your findings to identify the final suspect.

The answers and the confidential investigation report can be accessed through the QR code at the end of this book.

But remember, Detective... some secrets are worth solving yourself.

Good luck, Detective.

The truth is waiting to be uncovered.

The detective's notebook

Every clue brings you one step closer to the truth.
