

Winter is over, and everything is turning green again. Tomorrow, the spring market will take place: a big festival! It already smells delicious in baker Beaver's workshop. He's busy trying to get everything done in time with his assistant, Caterpillar. "Oh, no! Just one more day!" Caterpillar says anxiously.

Baker Beaver needs to knead the dough . . .

. . . divide it into pieces . . .

. . . shape it . . .

. . . and then put it —POP!—in the oven.

Phew! Everything is ready.
But how will he get all the goodies to the market?