

Each day on her way to the bus stop, Lisa sees many people. She notices their silence. Whether at work, at home, or while walking along the streets, the people only stare at screens—as if they’ve forgotten how to look at one another.