

Every day, they gather: the wrestlers of the grassland. With arms of steel and bodies malleable like clay, they compete on the open plain.

They fight to win, as only the strongest get to wear the jangga, the sign of honor worn around the neck,
with silk ribbons in all colors.

