

Crocodile is lying on the riverbank. His stomach growls.
It's been so long since he's had something to eat.
Since he's not as fast and strong as he used to be,
the other animals keep escaping. He needs to find a new way to catch them.

GROWL!
GROWL!

Here comes Zebra.
She's eating the grass
by the river. Crocodile quietly sneaks up on her.
Zebra keeps grazing.

Crocodile is very close by the time she sees him. She quickly takes a step back.
Zebra can't leave! Crocodile thinks.
If I pretend to cry, she might stay.
